【The best time forecast in nationwide】

The best time to see fall foliage is affected by temperatures from September to November. When temperature is low, leaves turn red early and when temperature is high, leaves turn red late.

This year, temperatures will tend to be higher in the second half of October all over Japan, but there will be periods when they are lower than normal due to cold air moving in. From November onward, it is expected to be slightly lower in eastern and western Japan. This makes the best time to see fall foliage same as usual in most of famous spots.
